

Paraphrasing Practice

The media should report more stories which report good news.

The media ought to report more stories reporting positive news.

Some people say that more money should be invested in science than in other subjects.

A number of individuals believe that more money ought to be invested in science than in other subjects.

Let's begin with "Investment..." :

Investment in science is more essential than other subjects.

The original sentence says "more money", which does not necessarily mean "more essential".
Do not interpret the task. Keep the meaning intact.

Investment in science should be more than that ~~of~~in other subjects.

The figure for China was significantly more than that for the US.

Some believe that tackling environmental issues should be managed by a global organization instead of being handled individually by national governments.

Some people believe that tackling environmental issues ought to be managed by a global organization rather than being handled individually by national governments.

We can change the order of the information in the sentence, especially when we are not sure of many substitute words and phrases:

A global organization can manage ~~more efficiently~~environmental issues better ~~rather~~ than national governments.

Some people believe that in the future, most cities will become unlivable due to pollution and overcrowding. Others think technological innovation will solve these problems.

A number of individuals say that most future cities will turn into unlivable areas because of ~~contamination~~pollution and overpopulation. Others argue technological advancement can ~~manage~~tackle these issues.

Some people say that it is possible to tell a lot about a person's culture and character from their choice of clothes

A number of individuals believe that it is feasible to ~~explore~~collect a lot of information about a person's culture and ~~feature~~personality from their choice of attire.

Or: ...explore a person's culture and personality

Some people think that the main benefit of international cooperation is in the protection of the environment, while others believe that it mainly benefits businesses.

A number of individuals believe that the main advantage of worldwide cooperation is the conservation of the environment, whereas others say businesses ~~enjoy more profits~~ chiefly benefit from it.