

When a building is designed, the most important factor is the intended use of the building rather than its outward appearance.

1. The main factor in designing a building is its intended function rather than its exterior design.

Commented [ET1]: This is in the original sentence, and there is no reason for eliminating it.

2. The primary consideration in designing a building is its intended use, rather than its external appearance. ✓

3. During the design process of a building, greater the greatest importance should be given to its intended use rather than its external appearance.

Commented [ET2]: The task gives you a superlative. You aren't comparing two things and saying which one is more important than the other.

4. The priority of the most significant factor when a building is designed is the its intended use of the building, prefer to rather than its outward appearance, when a building is designed.

Commented [ET3]: This makes no sense.

Commented [ET4]: This is an important piece of information that cannot be delayed until the end of the sentence. Without it, the meaning of the sentence remains unclear until the end.

Commented [ET5]: Use referencing to avoid repetition. The use of a possessive adjective (its) helps you avoid using BUILDING again.

Commented [ET6]: Not grammatically correct and not a substitute for rather than

5. When a building is designed, its intended use is more important than the most important factor, not its outward appearance.

Commented [ET7]: 1. See comment 2
2. You have eliminated the concept of FACTOR.

6. When designing a building is being designed, the most significant component factor is its intended use rather than its outward facade.

Commented [ET8]: Dangling: you have reduced the adverb clause without a shared subject.

Commented [ET9]: Not the same as FACTOR

Component = جزئی یا بخشی از طراحی
Factor = عاملی که بر طراحی تاثیر می گذارد

Commented [ET10]: Façade = the outward look of a building
⇒ The concept of OUTWARD is included in its meaning.

7. The ~~purposed~~intended use of ~~the~~a building ~~has priority over~~ is the most important factor,

- Commented [ET11]: Not an English adjective and not a substitute for INTENDED
- Commented [ET12]: This is the first time you are talking about this building.
- Commented [ET13]: See comment 4

not its external appearance, when designers ~~decorate~~design a buildingit.
