Thanks to technology advancements, every home can be equipped with state-of-the-art facilities for pets' playing and entertaining. There are a lot of astonishing cutting-edge toys. Even people can provide some compact devices suitable for their home. For example, nowadays foldable treadmills are really ubiquitous, which can meet the needs of running for pets and do not need considerable space.

In argument and adv/disadv essays, begin the second side with ON THE OTHER HAND:

On the other hand, some people argue that urban citizens, who usually live in small flats, suffer from a shortage of space, and living in this kind of accommodation can exert pernicious effects on pets in the long term. They claim their pets get bored when they stay at a single place all the time, which can lead to depression. They may also lose some natural skills such as their innate agility. Lack of adequate room for playing and running can limit them, as a result of which they cannot have enough physical activities to maintain their natural skills.

In conclusion, it is an efficient measure to keep pets at home. It is helpful for pets and their owners. Staying home's issues also can be resolved easily through adopting some approaches.

In argument essays, begin the conclusion with PERSONALLY, I THINK... and explain why the second side is wrong or how its points can be addressed. Then give your opinion and support it with a summary of the first side's main ideas:

Personally, I think that, thanks to technological advancements, every home can be equipped with facilities to entertain pets and allow them to exercise. Therefore, it is much better to keep them at home to increase their safety and decrease their owners concerns.
