

In the future, nobody will buy printed newspapers or books because they will be able to read everything they want online without paying.

To what extent do you agree or disagree with this statement?

Disagree:

Using the internet is becoming more common :

Technology era > more people will have access to the internet > increase the risk of misinformation > people will not be aware of the full truth > frauds will have the chance to manipulate people > newspapers are more reliable

- Not a suitable representative for the gist of this idea. You should definitely mention the risk of online misinformation or the higher reliability of prints instead.
 - It would be a good idea to think whether the reader will easily understand how you reached this conclusion from what's before it.

Most websites will not be free to access anymore :

Now people can download books for free > authors will not stand for it and sue those websites > there will be strict rules > more websites will be subscription based > only those who pay for the subscription can have access to books and other contents

- This is the OPINION you have given in the introduction: "Will everything be free? No, some websites will charge money." Now you must explain WHY they will not be free.

Paying for printed books and newspapers will be worth it when it comes to health :

Remote work is becoming more popular > People use their phones or computers to work > looking at the monitor several times a day > hard on their eyes > prefer to read printed books and newspapers during their break time

- Great reasoning and explanation!
